The YOUTH REGAINED project is pleased to announce the launch of its latest work, the Awareness Raising Toolkit and Trainers Guide. This new initiative aims to empower educators, community leaders, and professionals who interact with young people at risk of offending or reoffending by providing them with the tools and knowledge they need to promote positive change.

Understanding the various issues encountered by at-risk youth and juvenile offenders, the YOUTH REGAINED project created the Awareness Raising Toolkit and Trainer's Guide. This comprehensive resource aims to improve the abilities of individuals who work directly with vulnerable youth, offering them with unique ways for engaging, educating, and inspiring.

The key features of both tools include:

- The Toolkit and Guide contain practical exercises, case studies, and evidence-based tactics for promoting understanding, empathy, and effective involvement with at-risk children.
- The pilot program provides interactive training sessions for trainers, which include hands-on learning experiences that show how to apply the toolkit in real-world circumstances.
- To provide broad accessibility, the resources are available in several languages and formats, meeting the diverse needs of educators and youth workers throughout Europe.

We invite educators, youth workers, community leaders, and other stakeholders concerned with the well-being of at-risk youth to participate in this pilot training program. Together, we can foster a friendly and empowering environment for young people seeking a brighter future.

For additional information on the pilot program, including access to the Awareness Raising Toolkit and Trainer Guide, as well as instructions on how to join, please visit our website www.youthregained.eu or contact us at info@synthesis-center.com
